To give away money is an easy matter in any man's power. But to decide to whom to give it, and how large and when, and for what purpose and how, is neither in every man's power nor an easy matter. Hence it is that such excellence is rare, praiseworthy and noble.
--Aristotle, Ethics, 360 BC

Course Description:

Who gives? Who volunteers? Does it matter? This course will cover the scope and diversity of the nonprofit sector, as well as individual patterns of giving and volunteering. Further, although billions of dollars are distributed by individuals and charitable foundations each year, only some charitable programs are effective. Thus, a portion of the course will focus on providing students with the tools and skills to evaluate charitable programs for effectiveness.

Based on their own evaluations, students will have the opportunity to distribute significant funds (provided through The Philanthropy Lab and individual donors) to charitable organizations. Students will be placed into groups that will research, discuss, and debate charities, with the whole class determining the ultimate distribution of the funds.

Course Materials:

Peter Singer. 2009. The Life You Can Save. New York: Random House. Available at University Co-op.

Eric Friedman. 2013. Reinventing Philanthropy: A Framework for More Effective Giving. Potomac Books. Available at University Co-op.

Other course readings available through Blackboard.

Course Requirements and Grading:

Class Participation (10%) As in all college courses, students should come to class having read and thought about the assigned readings. Regular and thoughtful contributions to classroom discussions are essential to the success of the seminar. Also, attendance matters. Make sure you sign in on the attendance sheet every day. Your attendance will be considered in your overall participation grade. Only students who have attended regularly will vote on the final distribution of the $100,000. Finally, you will also be evaluated on your participation in group work.

Paper 1 (10%) 250 words, one page. Due: first draft on January 24, revision on February 7. Details provided in handout.

Paper 2 (15%) 500 words, two pages. February 28 first draft; March 21 revision. Details provided in handout.

Paper 3 (20%) 1250 words, five pages. April 18. Details provided in handout.

Oral Presentations (20%) individual and within debates.

Self and group evaluations (5%) 500 words, two pages. Due April 30. Details provided in handout.

Final exam (20%) May 12, 9-noon

Grades will include + and – distinctions.

Your grade will be docked one grade per day late, for any assignment.

May 12, 9-10:30 Final Exam

May 12, 11:00 Presentation of Checks to Recipients and Celebration

Overview of Process for the Distribution of the Funds

January 24th: students fill in choices for groups

- 12 groups of 3-4 students each, 4 groups per recitation section

January 31st: students receive group assignments

February 3rd: groups meet to discuss overall goals for their giving.

- Each student charged with finding three charitable organizations that meet the goals of the group.
- That means 9-12 organizations per group.
- Students will need to compile some basic information about their three organizations before the next group meeting.

February 7th: groups review the 12 organizations and begin design of a rubric for evaluation

February 21st: group meetings to narrow the organizations to be considered to 1 per member of the group.

- Should be based on the rubric created by the group.
- At this point, each group will cut down to considering only 4 organizations.
- Each organization is assigned to one member of the group for further study.

February 21st – February 28th: individuals work on paper #2, which is a report on their charity, and prepare a presentation on their charity for the upcoming presentations and debates.

March 3rd and March 5th: Each member of each group will present information on their charity. Then groups will debate within themselves on the merits of their individually-assigned charities. The rest of the class will provide input.

- Within your assigned group you will be presenting information, arguing, and attempting to persuade other members of your group as well as the rest of the class.
- The end result is that each group will select down to one charity for further research.

- At this time we will have 12 finalist charities, one per group.

March 7th: groups finalize their finalist charity and meet to organize due diligence research, further data collection, and tasks for group members.

March 7th - April 18th: Each group will undertake serious study of their selected charity.

- All aspects of the organization – mission, program effectiveness, capacity of management and board to lead the organization, fiscal strength, etc. must be considered.
- Students will evaluate the charities using the tools learned to this point
- Students will need to interview a representative from the charity
- Students will check with university lawyers about potential grantees to make sure there are no legal problems
- Each student will use the results of their own research, as well as the group's research, to write paper #3.

April 21st and 23rd: presentations and debates will provide detailed information for each group's top choice. Each member of the group has to play some role. The class will be voting on the amounts of money to give to each of the charities.

- presentations must include:

The case for this type of charity

Why this organization makes an impact

Any specific recommendations you are making on the size of the gift, unrestricted or restricted use, the percentage of the agency's budget the gift would be, possible uses of money (how much they need to make an impact)

- each group will be assigned an opposing group, who will prepare a rebuttal. Groups will have a chance to respond to the rebuttal, as well as to questions from the floor.

April 25th: voting. Only students who have attended regularly will vote on the final distribution of the funds.

April 28th: final decisions will involve the number of charities to give to and the amount to give to each charity. Information from the vote will be provided and a couple of alternatives debated and voted on. No fewer than 2 and no more than 6 charities will receive donations.

May 12th: checks will be presented to representatives of the selected charities.
